What is an uninterruptible power supply (UPS)?

What is a UPS? An uninterruptible power supply (UPS) is a type of backup battery that will continue to provide electrical power to the electronics that you have plugged into it even if electricity from your home outlets cuts out. Unlike a backup generator, it does not need to power up in order to start generating power.

Do smart devices need an uninterruptible power supply (UPS)?

Many smart devices have built-in battery packs, with modern laptops packing enough cells to last a whole day. However, typical desktop computers, routers, and similar devices still need to be plugged into a power source all the time to work. That's where an uninterruptible power supply (UPS) comes in.

Can a UPS battery backup cause a power outage?

In other words, if you experience a power outage in your area, your machinery should not shut down if it is plugged into a UPS battery backup. Many models of uninterruptible power supply (UPS) also provide surge protection. A surge protector blocks spikes in voltage so that they do not harm your electronics.

Is a portable power station better than a UPS?

A portable power station (PPS) is better suited for mobile devices and as a home backup solution compared to an uninterruptible power supply (UPS). For reliable off-grid or emergency backup power that you can use indoors or on the road, consider EcoFlow.

Can a portable power station be used as an uninterruptible power supply?

Some portable power station models can also be used as an uninterruptible power supply. In this mode, you'd keep your electronics plugged all the time with the portable power station providing pass-through power, and the battery switches over in the event of a power outage, keeping your electronics running without a blip.
